SOFC technology could help your business to produce electricity and heat in a very efficient way. Installing a SOFC system allows you to reduce your energy costs and emissions and makes you less dependent on the grid. It can be the key solution for making your business more sustainable and futureproof. In this webinar, you will learn more about this state-of-the-art technology.

The event will include a short introduction on the project, a description of the SOFC technology benefits, the analysis of potential business cases, and practical experience from the SOFC manufacturers.
